TRANS-ATLANTIC FLIERS LONG OVERDUE AT N. Y.

Italy Aroused Over Bomb Attack On King

14 KILLED IN PLOT AGAINST ROYAL THRONE

(Special Radio to Universal Service from Milan, Italy)
Miraculously saved by a ten minute delay from death by an annihilating bomb that killed 14 of his subjects as they waited to greet him, Victor Emmanuel, King of Italy, tonight is the hero of his country.
The nation's pledge was contained in a telegram from Premier Mussolini in Rome addressed to the monarch at the royal palace. The message:
"The soul of the whole nation goes to you most devotedly at this moment while discipline, Italy-wide, continues for the glory of the dynasty and the power of the fatherland."
Simultaneously Il Duce took personal charge of directing the hunt for the terrorists whose plot against the life of the king brought tragedy to Milan at the height of the festival in the opening of the annual International Trade Fair.
Milan received the following telegram from Il Duce:
"Bear flowers on the bodies of the victims killed by the heaviest criminality of barbarians; but powerless anti-Fascism. Our enemies will not win."
Despite the shock of the attempt on his life, the King insisted upon going through the formality of inaugurating the fair and then rushed to the hospital to which the 30 or more injured had been taken. There he spoke words of comfort to those able to receive him and pledged his personal attention to their welfare.
On his way to the palace he was enthusiastically cheered. After his arrival at his royal home he was compelled to appear again and again on a balcony in answer to the cheers of his people shouting:
"Long live the king! long live the monarchy!"

Youth, Principal In Fistic Embroglio At Mammy's Shack, Surrenders To Police

Charles Actis, who with his brother Peter, was sought by local police yesterday in connection with a fistic embroglio which took place late Thursday night at the Lions dance in El Cerrito, entered the Richmond police station last night and voluntarily gave himself up. On payment of $100 cash bail, he was released to await appearance on a charge of battery.
Actis declared he had no knowledge of his brother's whereabouts and officers are continuing the search.
Louis Sirard, president of the El Cerrito Lions club, and Deputy Sheriff W. H. Evans, were both treated at the Emergency hospital early yesterday morning for lacerations sustained in a rough and tumble fight which started when the Actis youths were removed from the dance hall and was continued after the dance in Mammy's chicken shack.
At the chicken shack, according to Sirard, who was seated at a table with Evans, Peter Actis refused to accept Evans' proffered handshake to indicate he held no ill feeling against the Richmond youths.
Later, said Sirard, Peter advanced upon Evans with an upraised poker; Sirard entered the fray and received a dam-

PLANS NEAR COMPLETION FOR R. R. SPAN

Following inspection of high officials of the Southern Pacific company of a site for a projected $15,000,000 railroad bridge to be erected at Martinez between Delta Head and Avary Point, it is understood that plans for the immense span are rapidly nearing completion.
The retention of Ralph Modjeski, New York consulting engineer and designer of many large bridges in this country, is taken as an indication that the executives of the Southern Pacific have made a definite decision to erect the structure.
It is reported that Modjeski, in company with other engineers of the company, made a detailed survey of the site preliminary to drawing plans for the span.

Ocean Hides Fate

Small Hope For Germ As Gale Whips Ocean

NEW YORK, April 12.—More than 24 hours had passed at 10 o'clock tonight without word of the trans-atlantic fliers whose singled-motored plane was fighting a bitter storm in the mid-Atlantic.
The Junkers monoplane Bremen carrying Captain Herman Koehl and Baron Von Huenefeld, Germans, and Captain James Fitzmaurice, of the Irish Free State air force, passed out over the grim Atlantic at Galway, Ireland, at 2:05 p. m. Thursday, and has not been sighted since, although its course lay over the Atlantic shipping lane in which a score or more of liners scanned the skies.

REALTY BOARD HEARS EXPERT

As a means of getting the matter of reappraisal before the citizens, members of the local realty board and city officials met with James O. Stafford, equalization appraiser, last night in the banquet room of Hotel Carquinez.
General discussion was held following a talk by Stafford, who cited pertinent facts regarding reappraisals he has undertaken in other cities.

The lack of news became ominous tonight when wireless dispatches from a German ship reported snow and hail falling and a northwest wind blowing 47 miles an hour on the surface.
That meant that the gallant fliers were not only menaced by the danger of ice forming on the plane and weighing it down but that they were bucking a headwind which would cut their speed almost in half.
Early in the day, the White Star liner, Majestic, when about 300 miles west of Southampton, England, reported heavy westerly winds indicating that the velocity of the adverse winds increased throughout the afternoon and night.
When it passed out to sea, the Bremen was making a speed of about 90 miles an hour, a most economical rate for fuel consumption. This speed undoubtedly was reduced as the plane went into the storm areas to fight the headwinds of nearly 50 miles an hour.

Youths Charged With Theft Bound Over

Charged with stealing a car owned by H. Speicher, Berkeley, part owner of Topsy's Roost, William Nichols and Frank Hickey were arraigned before Police Judge Odell yesterday afternoon and after a hearing were bound over to the superior court. Deputy District Attorney Hiram E. Jacobs prosecuted.
Speicher's car was recovered when the youths were arrested near Nativex.

CHURCH FELLOWSHIP BACKS LESTER AND ASKS OFFICIALS TO BAN COUNTY BULL FIGHTS

At one of the largest meetings of the Church Fellowship of the Protestant churches held at the Wesley M. E. Church last evening, at which there were 125 present, the members went on record, by a unanimous vote, as endorsing the action of County Humane Officer Isaac Lester in doing everything possible in putting an end to bull fights in this county.

Councilman George F. Black, an active worker in good government introduced the resolution, which was adopted unanimously. It reads as follows:
"The Richmond Church Fellowship at its regular meeting of April 12th wishes to endorse the action of Isaac Lester, the Humane Officer, for his untiring efforts in enforcing the law of our state and in using his utmost endeavors to remove and prevent bull fighting and other cruel treatment of dumb animals."

"Be it further resolved, that we go on record as utterly opposing to the unclean, degrading and barbarous practice of bull fighting which has lately come into our midst."
"Be it further resolved, that we will use our best endeavor to prevail upon our city, county, and State officials to remove from our State this degrading form of sport."

Lester drew a stirring picture of the bull fight in San Pablo last Sunday and told of the cruelty to both men and animals in that event. It was at the conclusion of his talk that the representatives of the various Protestant churches of the city, adopted the resolution upholding Lester in his work.

Taking as his topic, "The New Horizon," Ben F. Wilson, of the Anti-Rodeo Cruelty association, speaker of the evening called attention to those present to the need of organized church force as a definite relationship to present day problems.

"Let us fight our battles as the fathers of our country fought theirs," said the speaker.
He spoke of the contributions made by the various denominations represented in the progress of the world and in the creation of public sentiment. He urged the churches to work against war and for the common good of all.
Rev. F. H. Prince was chairman and introduced the speaker. A program consisting of trombone solos by J. E. Hill, baritone solos by J. W. Thompson accompanied by Miss Ruby Williams was presented.

The dinner was served by Circle No. 1 of the Wesley Ladies' Aid Society.
Wilson will be the speaker at the morning services in Wesley Methodist church Sunday, choosing as his topic, "The Church and Its Relation to Modern Society."

Masons To Direct Ledberg Funeral

Funeral services under the direction of the McKinley lodge of Masons will be held Saturday afternoon at Wilson & Kratzer chapel for John Ledberg, 57, local carpenter, who died suddenly in the office of a Richmond physician Thursday night. Interment will be made in Sunset View cemetery.
Ledberg was a member of the King City lodge of Masons of New Mexico.
Authorities were unable to locate relatives of the deceased.
Ledberg was also a member of the Gustav Vasa lodge of Richmond. Members of the lodge will act as pallbearers. He had been a resident of this city for 22 years.

The Eastbay district organizations will hold an initiation in Berkeley May 20.
Beginning in May the Y. M. I. will change its meeting dates from the second and fourth Thursdays to the first and third Thursdays, while the Y. L. I. will exchange dates with the Y. M. I.

YOUTH INJURED

Ed. Bequet, 13, San Pablo was treated at Emergency hospital Wednesday for a cut over the right eye, sustained when he bumped into a plastered wall.

Local Court May Lose Its Best Patron

Richmond courts face the possibility of losing a good customer. At least that is the threat contained in a letter received by Judge Alstrom from Pat McDonough, Emeryville manufacturer.
"I've got to stop picking on me," said the letter which contained $15 with which to pay a recent fine imposed by Judge Alstrom, who found McDonough guilty of speeding to keep a golf date with the judge; "or I'll give your city the 'go by'".
In mournful tone the missile recalls a similar occasion when he was fined $10.
"I've never been treated that way anywhere else," he said in the letter.

Second Richmond Man Ordered To Work By County

Joe Musso has company in the work house.

Appraisal experts may be all right and they may be an expensive luxury. In several cities such 'experts' have been employed at an expense of thousands of dollars to the taxpayers, and finally they have handed in their report and received their money. So far no good has resulted from such a report.

Propaganda is being circulated that Richmond is in need of a tax appraisal expert, but it is not believed the members of the council will listen to the talk.

In practically every city where a tax appraisal expert has been employed his report has not been used, and it has usually found its way in a pigeon hole, where it was permitted to gather dust.

Under the law the assessor is the sole judge of valuations and unless the figures he fixes are changed by a board of equalization they stand. He does not have to use the tax appraisal expert figures and does not usually consider the outsider as an interloper who knows far less of valuation than he does.

Let us not be lead astray by high sounding phrases.

BEN FRANKLIN'S WISDOM

An eastern newspaper celebrated the anniversary of "Poor Richard" by quoting some of the philosopher's terse sayings particularly applicable to business. One is:

"Let thy business, let not thy business drive thee."

A man is either the master of his business or it is his master. One may easily recognize the master of a business. He is cool, collected, unhurried. He knows "where he is at." His bills are discounted. He does not overdraw his bank account. His employees are working, not loafing on the job. He comes to his business fit for it, not a victim of late hours and too many highballs. His thinking is straight and he wastes no time while there is anything on his desk that needs attention. Another maxim is:

"Go what you can, and what you get, hold."

Get honestly, of course. Franklin had no sympathy for sharp tactics in business. Honest profits are to be held, not squandered; either in unnecessary personal gratification or in increased family expenses. It is not a good thing for a man's family to know he is rich until he is able to spend abundantly and freely. Even then he must be prudent; for too much money given to a rich man's children is a bad influence on them and has ruined thousands of youths who otherwise might have honored their parents. Here's a third truth:

"God helps them who help themselves."

Such men are not praying to Deity to make them successful in business. They work out their own economic salvation. We did a lot of wishing, not praying, in our careless years. We never had the nerve to try to persuade the Almighty to do for us what we should have done for ourselves. But when we began to do it then things began to "come our way." It is always that way. When a man helps himself things just naturally come to him. It's a principle of human life for them to do so.—W. G. Sibley in the Chicago Journal of Commerce.

A German seer predicts that this year will be famous for the birth of many beautiful children. As all parents will enthusiastically testify in this particular 1928 will not differ from its predecessors.—New York Sun.

A West Dallas widow says the reason she broke off her last engagement was because her fiance was named Hawk and she got uneasy when he called her a chicken.—Dallas News.

Senator LaFollette was very keen for an anti-third term law but has no objection to the custom of making the senatorship hereditary.

The earth will last a billion years says the scientists, but the fact will not keep some from worrying what will happen after that.—Indianapolis Star.

Fifty Years Ago Today

A SECRET LOVER who invaded the home of a merchant induced this belle to elope with him, but a mishap spoiled the plan. As she slipped down a rope from her bedroom window her petticoat caught on a nail, and her father, aroused by her attempts to free herself, appeared, gun in hand.

VIGOROUS HEALTH

NEURITIS

Neuritis, properly speaking, is an inflammation of a nerve, but many vague pains which cannot otherwise be classified are often called neuritis now that rheumatism has become old-fashioned. If an actual inflammation is present there is definite pain and tenderness along the course of the nerve, together with interference with movement and sometimes with nutrition of the parts supplied by the nerve. The inflammation is due to the same fundamental cause as any inflammation—toxic condition of the system—and some cases are complicated to pressure from various sources, especially spinal subluxations.

Owing to the fact that there is an actual inflammation of the nerve itself, rest of the affected parts is required. In this respect the treatment differs from neuritis, in which there is no inflammation of the nerve. Otherwise the treatment is about the same as the fundamental causes are the same. The main points are the orange diet, so as to cleanse the system, the milk diet, which is especially valuable in nerve disorders; applications of heat for the relief of pain and if possible, sunbaths, tepid baths, deep breathing, rest and if necessary, spinal manipulation.

I have spots dancing in front of my eyes. I have no kidney trouble but am bothered with ulcers of the stomach off and on. What causes them. Do you think coffee is bad? I have two cups with two slices of bread every morning for breakfast. Is that enough?—MRS. Mary A.

Spots before the eyes are not necessarily due to kidney trouble. They are probably a result, in your case, of general toxemia. Ulcers of the stomach are due to improper diet and if present at all you must have them constantly even though the symptoms are not noticeable all the time. Coffee is always bad. If the bread you take with the coffee is white bread you would do much better to take nothing at all for breakfast. The coffee is a poison and the white bread is acid forming.

ing. What you probably need is fasting and the milk diet.

My dentist tells me that my system is full of acid. I also have catarrh. Kindly advise.—MAY

Whether or not you are full of acid, the catarrh does indicate a lowered alkalinity. In most cases the alkalinity is very quickly restored by an exclusive orange diet, which may be continued for five to ten days, drinking plenty of water and using an enema daily. Eating is always resumed gradually, employing plenty of raw foods. Due attention is given to general health building measures, especially deep breathing, exercise and cool baths.

Last August my physician advised me I was suffering from the effects of sleeping sickness. I am strong physically but somewhat constipated. Would colonic irrigation and stomach wash help?—L. K.

One stomach wash would be all right and you might take a number of colonic irrigations to bring about more rapid cleansing of the digestive tract, but do not depend upon those alone for complete results. Some orange dieting will, no doubt, be necessary, and if possible the milk diet. If the latter is not used a largely raw solid food diet of fruits, vegetables, nuts and buttermilk should be employed. Due attention is given to exercise, deep breathing and sleep.

WHY I BLUSHED

Last Sunday I was invited to ride with some newly acquired elderly friends in their recently purchased sedan. I rode in the back seat with one of the maidly ladies, and while touring the highways they suggested we stop and enjoy an ice cream cone. I tried in vain to eat mine as all other occupants seemed to be relishing theirs. Finally, at what I considered an opportune moment, I thought I would not be suspected of disposing of mine—I flung the chocolate cone out the supposedly open window. Imagine my embarrassment. The window was closed. W. K.

Affairs of the Heart and Your Marriage Problems

Patricia Lee answers questions relating to problems of married life. Names and address should be added to letters as a mark of good faith but will not be published. Readers who desire private answers should enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope and 10 cents in coin to cover cost of typing, etc. Because of space limitations it is not possible to print answers to all letters received, and readers who wish an early reply should take advantage of this special service. On account of the large quantity of mail coming to this department, about ten days should be allowed for a reply. Write to Patricia Lee, care of this paper.

Dear Patricia Lee:

First of all I want to tell you that I have a girl friend, and I love her dearly. There is also a fellow in the case, and I love him, too. About two weeks ago I received a letter from my pal, and Patricia Lee, you don't know how stunned I was when I read that letter. She told me that we had better part as she never agreed with me. She knew I loved "C" and I knew she loved him. I wrote back and told her not to be crazy as I didn't care a snap for "C" and that I would never break with her. My pal told me to keep going with "C" but I can't. I know she loves him, although she sometimes says she doesn't. But I said that, and I love him better than any one else. I know you will tell me to tell her all, and both of us to forget and part, but it's awfully hard because he's so nice. What shall I do?—MARIE

Dear Marie:—

You're making a mountain out of a mole-hill. I don't deny that it is just such misunderstandings that break up many friendships but it certainly would be silly to let it break up yours. The young man is no puppet, my dear that you and your friend can pull first one way and then the other. He has feelings of his own. If he goes with you, then he likes you best and your friend has no reason to take you to task about it. The fact that you stop going with him will not make him like your pal. You need strong friendships with women as well as men to help you through life. And situations such as this will come up in friendships between women. Learn to take them sensibly. I think that your pal is just a bit jealous and it will take tact to keep her friendship. Do something especially nice for her and perhaps she will see how foolish she has been.

DADDY DUSK

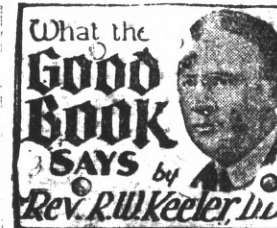

Twinnie's costume for the play that she and Twin had written for the school competition was very simply for in the play she merely had to be herself, with her dark blue coat and her bright red beret. In one of the later scenes, however, she did get a chance to wear a jeweled headdress and a Chinese coat, for her visit to the Empress, but even these were not half so elaborate as those of Jane and Elaine who were the Empress and the Lady in Waiting.

Twinnie could even look in while the other classes were giving their plays. Theirs was to be third on the program, with Joe's play right after.

Twinnie came back to the classroom, which had been turned into a dressing room and wardrobe room combined, to report that the first two plays really weren't so terribly good. She thought that they had a chance of winning the competition. And while she was telling this one of the other members of the class slipped in.

"Our play is ever so much better than the others so far," she whispered. "Go to it, kids and we will be sure to win."

As the curtain went up and Twinnie stepped out onto the stage and into the big plane which the manual training boys had built, she caught sight of Joe, down in front, his eyes big as saucers. He was running his hand across his forehead as if he were in a daze.

POWDER MY BACK

NOVEL BY MARLINE DEHAAS

Copyright 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

"POWDER MY BACK," starring Irene Rich, is a Warner Bros. picture of this novel.

synopsis

"It's raining out," Mildred informed her. "You'd better take a light coat of some kind—sometimes it gets rather chilly with these storms, and it may turn cold tonight."

"Renee, will you take a light coat for me, and one for yourself," Adele instructed. "I guess I'd better have the black satin with the monkey fur. What time is it now?" The actress consulted her watch. "Almost a quarter to eight," she announced. "Have you everything ready, now, Renee? You didn't forget any of my things in the top drawers of the dressing table?"

"No, Madame," Renee carefully opened the closet and the various places where anything might be kept. "We are all ready—when ever Monsieur comes."

"I know—but Adele, I was really crying because of what Mother said about you—and because I know it's not true, and I don't want to see you go at all."

"Well, I shouldn't worry a bit about what Mother said about me," Adele consoled the girl. "Because, to me, it doesn't matter, and you mustn't believe all that you hear."

"I know, but mother said that I was not to see you—ever again—that you were a very bad woman—and that I couldn't even say good-

"Look, Adele," Mildred held out a photograph shyly. "would you autograph that for me—just so I can always look at you. I'll hide it away so mother won't find it."

"Oh, my darling, that's a terrible picture, really," Adele looked at the likeness of herself. "That was one that I had I guess to be sent out when a photograph was requested by any one. They're not at all well finished. I'll send you a beautiful picture of me when I get back to New York."

Mildred shook her head. "No, you can't Adele, because mother opens all my mail, and she sees everything that comes into the house. If you did send me a picture she'd probably destroy it, so you'd better do this one for me. Here's a fountain pen." She held out a small gold pen.

"All right," Adele autographed the picture, leaving over her dressing table; shook it for a moment until the ink dried, and handed it to her niece.

"Thank you ever and ever as much, Adele," Mildred looked at the face of the picture with loving eyes. "I'll always keep it."

They waited for a few moments Renee still looking at the autographed picture. At last she heard the sound of a motor and the honking of a horn.

"There, that's Harry," Mildred told Adele. "I'm going along to the station with you, if you don't mind."

"Of course not, here, Renee, you take the lighter bags—Mildred you can take the small case there—I'll carry my little boxes, and Harry can bring down the other things. All set?" She looked back at the room, and then ran down the steps, followed by Renee and Mildred. As the three went toward the hallway Adele glanced toward the parlor, where all the events of the afternoon had occurred. The doors were pulled to, and all that could be heard was a mumbled of voices.

"Here, I have an umbrella for you," Harry came bounding up the steps, and escorted Adele and Mildred down to the car. "The three of us can sit in the front seat—it's wide enough, and we can put the baggage in the back seat with Renee." He helped the actress and her niece into the car, and then got the maid settled behind. "Now, I'll get the rest of the stuff—I know where it is. It's in the largest guest-room—last door that you enter." And off he went, to return presently, laden with all the luggage that was left.

Once settled, the car moved off down the street, the headlights twinkling brightly and the streaking rain. Lights from houses sent far-reaching beams into the wet night. The streets seemed with tiny puddles; gutters ran swiftly, bearing the refuse of summer dust and dirt. Few people appeared on the sidewalks—and those who did, passed like scurrying black blotches. Street lamps reflected their orange glow in the wet darkness.

At last Harry turned the car off towards the depot, deserted, now, because of the rain. The few lights flickered dully, and without enthusiasm. Adele shivered slightly at the depressing sight. But Harry was already jumping out and getting the baggage ready to take with him.

"I'll check all these large pieces through for you," he told Adele. "I'll save you a lot of trouble, and the trip isn't so very long. You may not find another nice young man like me to help you," he laughed.

"I'm sure I shan't," Adele called to him as he made off with the luggage. She turned to her niece. In the semi-darkness she could see big tears rolling down Mildred's cheeks. "Don't be sad, darling," she kissed the girl fondly. "Always be happy—don't be hypocritical—and you'll always be young and beautiful. Look, that's the train now, isn't it?"

Through the rain they could see the big headlight cutting into the mist, and then they heard the distant sound of the whistle.

"I'll get out and see you on the train, Adele," Mildred called.

bye to you," Mildred's sobs started up afresh.

"Now, now," Adele dipped a handkerchief in some cologne and applied it to Mildred's eyes. "You're here with me now, and some day you can come to see me—I promise. We'll arrange it somehow. And I want you to do something for me."

"What?" Mildred dried her eyes, anxious to do anything for her favorite aunt. "Can I help you? I'm sorry. I've been sitting here and thinking all about my own troubles, and you're so busy. What do you want me to do for you?"

"Just this, Mildred," Adele instructed her niece. "First, I want to know the first train out of here this evening that gets me to a larger town, and then I'll have to have a car or cab or something so that I can get these bags to the station. I don't suppose your father will be particularly pleased to help me, so we'll have to call a cab from the garage—is that what you do here?"

"Oh, it's much easier than that," Mildred exclaimed. "I'll call Harry, and he came come and help us with all the luggage and everything."

"There's a dear," Adele smiled at her niece. "If you can do that, and tell Harry to find out about the trains and be here in time to take me, that will be perfectly splendid."

"I'll get him right away," Mildred promised. "I can get to the phone in the closet under the stairs while mother and father are in the parlor, and they'll never hear me at all. They're still discussing you, you know."

"I'm sure they wouldn't object to my finding some means of transportation, if it leads me away from their home," Adele remarked caustically.

"I'll be right back, then," Mildred assured her aunt as she hurried quietly downstairs and slipped into the closet to phone to Harry and explain the circumstances.

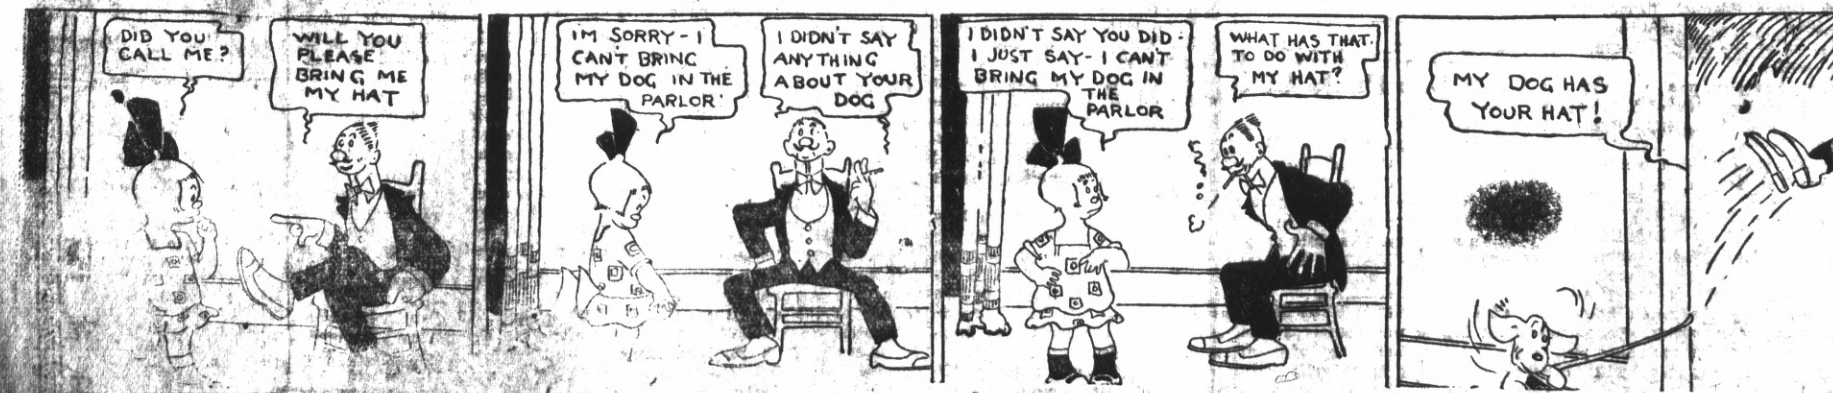

In a few moments Mildred returned. "I got him," she announced triumphantly. "He says that there's a train out for Des Moines at eight-twenty-seven, and it's a good train—not such a local as the one you came on, and he'll be here by eight o'clock at the latest, and he'll see that your baggage is checked through, and everything."

"You're a dear," Adele turned to her dressing table and finished her toilette. She got into the black dress and Renee began hooking it.

AND THE WORST IS YET TO COME

UNDERWORLD LIFE BARED IN BIG CITY

Just as every nation and every people has its own code of ethics, so, too, have the "unseen city" of America—the gangsters and underworld with their own secret bonds and their own secret customs that set them aside, in a measure, from everyday people.

An interesting light on this is cast in the production of "The Big City" Lon Chaney's new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer starring vehicle, now playing at the California theatre.

In it much of the etiquette of the underworld gleaned in research from police reports, is shown.

The old saying regarding honor among thieves, says Chaney, "has rather a startling application in actuality in the underworld."

"No matter what happens, a gangster is supposed never to tell on anyone else who, like himself, is outside the pale. To squeal, even on a personal enemy, is considered the gravest of crimes, and makes the man who does it an outcast even among his own kind. Hence to call a man a 'squealer' is the deadliest of insults."

"Among themselves, gangsters may war—even kill. But when one is picked up, he never tells who his enemies are; he may be dying but will not disclose the person who shot him. That is one of the adamant laws of the unseen city."

Chaney plays a gangster ruler in this picture, a vivid romance of the underworld and New York's night life. Marceline Day is the heroine, a shopgirl enmeshed in an underworld plot, and James Murray plays her sweetheart, a young gangster, henchman of Chaney. Betty Compson, Virginia Pearson, Mathew Betz, Lew Short, and others of note are in the cast.

Ted Browning directed. Other features include "Adoration" a screen novelty; "Ko Ko The Kop," a cartoon comedy; and current news events.

School nurse says
all girls should know this

TALKING to a roomful of high school girls on personal hygiene, an experienced district nurse said: "One of the basic rules of health for girls is to keep the system functioning naturally at all times. Normal exercise and diet habits should be encouraged. But when necessary there's no harm in taking nujol, since it works mechanically and can't disturb the normal functions of any organ of the body. Particularly with girls, there are times when nujol should always be taken. Take a spoonful every night for a few days. It's a thoroughly safe and harmless method. It won't cause distress or gas pains or griping."

Nujol is different from any other substance. It contains no drugs or medicine. It can be taken safely no matter how you are feeling because it is so pure and harmless and works so easily. Every woman should keep a bottle on hand. Every druggist has this remarkable substance. Get the genuine.

ANTIOCH PLANT HIT BY BLAZE

ANTIOCH, April 12.—Fire of undetermined origin but suspected by officials to be of incendiary nature at midnight destroyed a stack of compressed straw valued at $12,000 at the Antioch plant of the Fibreboard Products Company.

Lack of wind and labor of the Antioch fire department prevented the fire from spreading to other stacks of straw and paper in the plant's storage yard. The blaze was a half mile from the plant proper, which was not endangered.

Opinion is divided as to whether the blaze was caused by spontaneous combustion or was of incendiary nature but in view of a half dozen other fires of similar nature in the last four years authorities are inclined to the believe that the fire was set.

An investigation is being made by Deputy Sheriff Ralph Harrison.

CURWOOD PLAY IS ON SCREEN AT RICHMOND

Another novel from the pen of that immensely popular author, James Oliver Curwood, has been brought to the screen in "Prisoners of the Storm" the Universal Jewel production starring House Peters, which will be screened at the Richmond theatre today and tomorrow.

The picture is based on one of Curwood's most famous novels, published under the title of "The Quest of Joan", and was adapted to the screen by Charles A. Logue. "Prisoners of the Storm" has its locale in the north woods, as have most of the stories of this popular writer. It deals with the adventures of a miner, who is surrounded by a chain of circumstantial evidence, connecting him with murder and which he knows nothing.

The novel has been translated to the screen very faithfully and carries not only the spirit of the author's story, but the epic atmosphere of the Canadian woods.

Peggy Montgomery, Walter McGrath, Harry Todd, Fred DeSilver, Lillian Nicholson play prominent roles in support of the star.

Other features include the fourth chapter of "Heroes of the Wild" featuring Jack Hoxie; and a Felix the Cat cartoon comedy.

Do you buy advertised goods?

Of course you do; everybody does. Just run over in your mind the various articles that you have purchased in the last week or the last month. How about foods? Your breakfast fruits, cereals and bacon are all advertised. Probably that is how you first came to know of them—through advertising. Probably the shoes you are wearing, or the dress or suit you have on are equally well-known advertised makes, and you are proud of them.

In the home. On the floor are rugs and linoleum—the better wearing kinds are extensively advertised. What about the kitchen? Aluminum ware, gas ranges, hot water heaters, dish and clothes washers, cooking utensils of all kinds—practically everything you use is advertised. You buy advertised products because you have confidence in them. You know that a manufacturer cannot afford to advertise shoddy or unworthy merchandise.

Advertising is one form of insurance. It gives you a feeling of perfect confidence and safety when you ask for an advertised brand, for you know that you will get the quality and service you expect. The name is the guarantee.

The more you read advertising the more you will know about human progress. You will become well posted in almost every line of human endeavor and a canny judge of values. Reading advertisements is a fine habit. Cultivate it.

WHALES IN DRAMATIC OCEAN BATTLE KILLED BY SHARKS

By A. FLETCHER DELKIN

I have traveled in many lands, seen many stirring sights, faced perils at which even now I almost blanch, but of all the strange spectacles I have ever beheld I shall never forget the marine battle between two great whales and a combined number of swordfish and blackfish which I witnessed from the deck of a tramp steamer about seventy-five miles east of Barbados. A wilder scene would be hard to picture. It thrilled me more than a battle I once saw in Africa between two giant rhinoceroses—and that was amazing enough, I'll say!

But one can expect to see such things in Africa, just as one can expect to behold, as I did in the Florida Everglades, a battle between two monster alligators. One does not often stumble, however, into an opportunity to see two leviathans of the deep and a horde of smaller but tremendously vicious and bloodthirsty fish battling it out in midocean.

A Thrilling Spectacle Ever since I was a boy and learned in Sunday school of Jonathan's adventure with the whale, I have always had a wholesome respect for these mammoths of the ocean. But I am afraid my respect for their prowess has been somewhat lessened since I saw that battle.

For when we steamed away from the scene there were two gigantic bodies floating on the surface of the sea, and around those floating islands of whale-flesh surged shoals of swordfish and blackfish with an occasional shark here and there darting in to enjoy its share of the mighty feast!

I have been in the South Pacific and seen the sturdy whaling ships go out after the sea mammals—have gone along, in fact, and have been privileged to help in the killing of them. But that was a different killing than this butchery. That was in the cause of civilization, the seeking of whales for whalebone, fats and oils. And anyway, I was only a crank amateur, seeking adventure and given a harpoon only as a courtesy. I doubt if I could qualify as a real whaler on that meager experience.

But I never expected to find whales in the neighborhood of Barbados, and, for that matter, neither did the captain of our ship. So it was with somewhat of a thrill that we heard the outlook yell: "Whales ahead—two of them!"

Battling for life I was among those who rushed to the bow to see the strange spectacle. And I knew right away that something must be wrong with those whales, for even my slight acquaintance with them on my amateur whaling trip had acquainted me with the fact that whales will immediately start off full speed from man-made vessels.

These whales didn't even give us a humble. And as we drew nearer and could see them plainly without glasses, we learned the dreadful reason.

They were dying, now this way, now that, thrashing the water with their mighty tails, in a frenzied agony of effort to throw off the enemies besetting them—enemies which leaped high out of the water to dart on the backs of the tormented mammals—huge blackfish, I noticed they were—and we could faintly hear the noise of the impact as they landed on the shiny, quivering masses of flesh and bone.

And here and there would flash the upward striking blades of the giant swordfish, saw-toothed and agonizing as they rent the huge carcasses whenever they struck—and that was so often that I wondered the whales could stand it so long. The surface of the sea was crimsoned with blood, and not alone the blood of the whales, either. For they killed their foes outright every time their flailing tails smote and lashed against the gruesome horde.

Swords darted faster and more viciously into the hides of the unfortunate behemoths, heavier fell the back-breaking blows of the leaping blackfish, deeper but the sharp-toothed jaws of the great sharks.

AN Ocean Shambles I have said that I have lost some of my old respect for whales, but I should qualify that. For a gamer couple of battlers against odds I probably never shall see again. But whales are not built for fight. As a rule they are peaceful creatures, more willing to flee from a fight than to seek one. In this case they couldn't flee. When they tried to submerge the swordfish would thrust their terrible weapons upward into their bellies while the blackfish and sharks would torment them from the front, rear and above.

And weirdest of all was the virtual noiselessness of this merciless battle. The swishing of the monster tails of the whales and their snorting and agonized spouting, however, might have been heard from a distance of possibly fifty feet, I should imagine. We did not go nearer than a quarter mile, as the captain feared those great, lashing tails might injure the sides of his old ship.

While Leap High It was inspiring to see those wreathed whales, tormented beyond even their own great capacity to endure pain, leap high into the air, so that their entire giantlike bodies were visible!

And now we noticed that the thrashing of the big tails was growing weaker and weaker, the darting of the titans from their enemies less vigorous. I actually shuddered as I thought to myself "Thank God, I'm not in that fight!" And I was thankful indeed that I stood on a ship's deck, safe from the saw-toothed swords, the cruel teeth of the sharks, the deadly jaws of the blackfish.

IT was a case of love at first sight between Josef Hofmann, noted pianist, and Betty Short (above), whose marriage, long concealed, has just been discovered. Chief reason for keeping marriage secret was that Hofmann's daughter by his first marriage was about to make debut.

has 525 delegates at the present time, and it only takes 545 to nominate.

The need of a general storm sewer system for the entire city has been apparent for many years—especially during the winter period. The council has recognized this need and recently appointed a sanitary engineer who is making an entire survey of the needs of Richmond. This work will involve about a year's labor, when a complete report will be submitted, and the council will be placed in a position to act intelligently in the matter.

Now is the time to plan your new home. The good weather is here, and all conditions are favorable to the new home builder. You can erect a home for less money at the present time, than at any time for many years.

Lumber and most of the materials are at a low ebb at the present time. Take advantage of this condition, secure a lot and build a home.

The new automatic signal at Main street and San Pablo avenue, Albany is a wonderful improvement, and is handling the heavy traffic to perfection. These signals cost money but they save many lives and much property. The money is well invested.

Judging from the drive that is being made by the Southern Pacific to increase travel on the direct Richmond-San Francisco ferry, it is believed it will only be a comparative short time, before an increase schedule will be inaugurated, which will be very pleasing to the people of this city. If the Key System could only see its way to pull up its rail and get out of town, Richmond would soon be enjoying a universal bus system, which would take care of the needs of residents in all sections of the city.

WHISKERINOS AND SANNIES MEET TODAY

The well oiled arm of Lefty Reckleberg will be unleashed today against the Bearded Beauties of Los Angeles, who engage the Richmond Sannies at 4:30 this afternoon in the first street grounds.

The whiskerino clan has a strong lineup and are prepared to put forth their best efforts to neutralize whatever stigma may have attached to them as a result of the expose which unmasked them as having close-cropped hair. They differ from the ordinary ball club in that they have plentiful growths of whiskers, even though they are not the original House of David team.

According to manager Minley of the Beauties, connections have been severed between the club and the press agent, who sent out the House of David story.

The admission charge has been reduced to 35 cents. Phil Jones of the Sannies feeling this would be fair to local fans who expected to witness the real House of David team.

Dampier, McCann Top Cerrito Card

Eddie Dampier, San Jose, and Billy McCann, Cleveland, will furnish the main event at El Cerrito Athletic club tonight. Dampier's holds two draws with Jack Silver and is coming along fast, with fair indications that tonight's brawl may send him another notch up the ladder.

McCann is no novice at the manly art of scrambling nostrils having traded blows with the best of them for 10 years, meeting such artistic shellackers as Lew Landler, Sammy Mandell, Charley White and Rocky Kansas.

A fast preliminary card of four round bouts has been carded. A last minute change has placed Rube Simonsen and Joe Adrianson in the second preliminary to replace Billie Liber and Joe Viera, both of whom are sick in bed.

The Kellys will battle in the semi-windup, when Eddie and Frankie Kelly of Oakland and San Francisco, mix for the paying gentry.

Pat Leonard of San Francisco, middle, and Young Jack Johnson of Berkeley, battle in the special, and the other bouts include Frank Shea and Manuel Freitas, heavyweights and Joe De Maria and Joe Condi, 114 pounders.

STATE BALKED ON REQUEST TO INSPECT DAM

Because neither Governor Young nor State Engineer Edward Hyatt is clothed with authority by law to investigate private or district water projects nor to recommend or enforce any construction changes, state officials cannot undertake the requested investigation of the Lafayette dam of the East Bay Municipal Utility District. Hyatt yesterday advised the Contra Costa Board of Supervisors.

Several weeks ago the supervisors, following the collapse of the St. Francis dam, adopted a resolution directed to the governor and the state engineer asking that Hyatt make an investigation of the Lafayette dam to determine its safety. The request was not provided by any thought that the dam is unsafe but merely to secure public assurance of the soundness of its construction.

In a letter to the supervisors Hyatt declared that state officials lack entirely any legal authority of power to make such an investigation and suggests that the board of supervisors employ an engineer to make the desired survey. Hyatt declared that in all probability the next legislature will clothe the state officials with supervision of dam projects. He expressed willingness to aid the supervisors in selection of a competent engineer or engineers to make a survey if the board desires.

The utility district directors have expressed entire willingness to co-operate in any investigation directed to the stability of the dam.

More Like Ocean Liner Than 'Flop House'

HEALTH COMMISSIONER of New York recently descended upon the Tub, Mr. "Zero's" haven for homeless men on the Bowery, and declaring them insalubrious corded them from their beds and forced them into the cold streets. Now it is equipped with steam-heated chairs where those bested in life's battles may take refuge.

Carless Drivers Target Of Police

Local officers under Chief of Police Dan Cox are cooperating this month with the California Public Safety conference in the support of education and enforcement work in connection with reckless driving.

"Whenever a motorist violates some express road rule, causing an accident, he should be charged with reckless driving, and be severely dealt with," stated Chief Cox. "Persons who are utterly indifferent to the rights and safety of others upon a public highway should be punished."

Attention is called to section 21 of the California Vehicle act, relating to the subject of reckless driving: "Any person who knowingly and willingly drives any vehicle upon a public highway, either without due caution and circumspection or in such manner as to endanger the life, limb, or property of any person, shall be guilty of reckless driving."

Richmond should pride itself in the fact that it has 10 active Scout Troops and about 210 Boy Scouts.

These boys are striving to attain the three important ideals of Scouting, honesty, courage and ambition, so that they may become good citizens.

If men like Colonel Roosevelt, Dan Beard, James West, and President Coolidge back them up, certainly they are worthy of support.

California boasts the highest number of "merit badges" of any state in the union and this means much. A "Merit badge" is not awarded for nothing. To obtain one a scout must be thoroughly familiar with one of the 86 subjects that he has to choose from.

TROOP ELEVEN

Troop 11 is getting well under way now. At the regular meeting Thursday night 16 scouts, and one candidate were present.

The boys are planning for a trip to Mitchell Canyon which will be held either on April 21 or 23, Saturday. This trip will be held jointly with troops 3.

The troop played games and passed tests, and were instructed in map making by Mr. Hess, Scoutmaster Carl Rasmussen was in charge of the meeting.

TROOP FOUR

In the absence of Scout Commissioner R. F. Cox, Don Phillips took charge of the regular meeting of Troop 4, which was held last Monday night. Cox was over in San Francisco at the annual meeting of the National council of the Boys Scouts of America, which is being held for the first time this side of the Mississippi river.

Some of the boys went over in the afternoon and took part in the huge parade which took place. The boys greatly enjoyed the trip and brought back many interesting accounts of the parade.

TROOP THREE

Troop 3 held its regular meeting in the Scout hall last Wednesday evening. Scoutmaster Louis Rasmussen and Junior Assistant Scoutmaster Lloyd Hall were in charge of the meeting. The boys discussed plans for a trip to Mitchell Canyon at the foot of Mt. Diablo, which will take place either April 21, or April 23. A medal has been put up as a prize to the boy who shows the most real scouting in the next six weeks. The troop played many interesting games, and the boys are getting some real scouting spirit. Keep up the good work, Troop 3.

THE BANQUET

Tuesday evening a banquet was held at the Palace Hotel in San Francisco in honor of the National Council, and several scouts from Richmond, including Claude Clark, Chief of Police Dan Cox, Thomas G. Gray and R. F. Cox, local Scout commissioner attended. During the course of the evening talks were given by Colonel Roosevelt, and some of the other members of the National Council. Dan Beard awarded the alpenyrs, which are awarded for outstanding services to scouting. A short skit which showed scouting from the time of its beginning to the present day, was greatly enjoyed by all those present, and was the talk of the evening.

BIG PARADE HELD

A huge parade opened the 78th annual session of the National council of the Boy Scouts of America, which was held in San Francisco on April 9, 10, 11. The parade started up Market street, at about 3 o'clock and ended at the Civic Center at about 4:30. The parade was led by the San Scout Float, which was followed by the massed colors. After this came a few more floats, and then scouts from all over the country.

Intermittently with the scouts were R. C. C. bands of San Francisco, and Scout bands from San Francisco and Los Angeles.

At the Civic Center the members of the National council were officially welcomed by Mayor Rolph, and he introduced each member to the crowd. After the formal welcoming, the San Francisco Scouts put on some demonstrations.

Girls Are Host To Hi-Y Club

More than 60 boys and girls were present last night at the Y building when the girls Hi-Y were hosts to the boys Hi-Y with Peggy Errington in charge.

The affair was in the nature of a kids' party, the boys and girls being garbed in children's clothes, even going so far as drinking pop and smoking the tongue with all-day suckers.

A comedy skit was put on by Barbara Emery, Emily Hughes, Jewel Chapin and Peggy Errington.

Evelyn Hughes was in charge of the refreshments.

A cracker race was enjoyed. William Clarenback winning the contest.

Miss Cuthbertson and Miss Plintz, local high school teachers and advisors for the Hi-Y were present. Eleanor Albert is president of the Girls Hi-Y.

Plans Completed For Public Concert

Plans are practically completed for the public concert and dance of the Richmond Mannerchor, German vocal organization, to be held tomorrow night in Winters hall. H. Nelderhofer of San Francisco is directing the chorus which has its program well in hand for the concert.

Angel food cakes! easy to make

When grandmother made angel food cakes the recipes of her day were inaccurate. It took years to know her oven.

But today, when you accurately measure and mix ingredients you believe your cakes should always be good.

They will be, unless you're guessing at the oven temperature which is the chief cause of rubbery angel food cakes. They must be baked at 325 degrees.

All themodern gas ranges have the Oven Temperature Control. It keeps the oven at exactly the temperature for which it is set. You place the angel food cake in the oven, set the Control for 325 degrees and leave the kitchen for an hour. The monotony of watching the baking vanishes. Meats, pies, and even a whole meal can also be baked with the same ease and freedom.

See the modern gas ranges with the Oven Temperature Control.

Percentage Saving

If THE family budget system breaks down under the strain of excessive bookkeeping, recourse may be had to percentage saving. The plan is simple, effective, and certain of results. It consists of saving a certain percentage of income each month and depositing the money in an American Trust Company Savings account. Saving ten per cent of income is possible for most families. Funds are rapidly accumulated under this arrangement, and four per cent interest, compounded semi-annually, automatically builds up the balances.
